DUBLIN CASTLE,
20th August, 1908.

SIR,

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, forwarding, for submission to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the Report on the Sea and Inland Fisheries of Ireland for the year 1907, Part I., General Report.

I am,
Sir,
Your obedient Servant,

SEA AND INLAND FISHERIES OF IRELAND, 1907.

REPORT

TO THE

SECRETARY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND TECHNICAL INSTRUCTION FOR IRELAND.

SIR,

We have the honour to submit Part I. of the Report for the year 1907 on the Sea and Inland Fisheries of Ireland.

PART I.—GENERAL REPORT.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

In our last Annual Report certain influences and changes affecting the Irish Sea Fisheries were considered somewhat in detail. The decline in the general capture, which was noted in 1906, unfortunately continued in 1907. The immediate cause was, however, special in character, and bearing in mind the wintry weather and the continuous storms which prevailed at the end of May, for the whole of June, and again in the autumn, one can well understand that fishing at sea during that period was well-nigh impossible. It is then that the spring mackerel and herring fisheries are usually at their best, and the failure in these accounts for a large portion of the total decline of 1907. A more serious failure, because of its not being directly due to weather conditions, was that experienced in the autumn at Downing's Bay. Boats assembled there, and for months waited in vain for the herring, which, however, did not show up in paying quantity until the greater part of the fleet had dispersed. The consequent loss was felt not only by the fishermen, but by the curing firms and by the numerous hands which in good seasons obtain employment at the stations.

In view of the difficulty which sailing boats now experience in competing with steamers in all branches of the fishing industry, and the financial risks involved in investment in steam drifters by fishermen who work from home ports, we thought it desirable to experiment with a paraffin motor.

We accordingly issued a loan to a carefully selected crew, and placed an order for a 25-ton motor fishing boat with Messrs. Tyrrell and Sons, of Arklow. The dimensions of the vessel (named "Ovoca"), which is fully rigged for sailing, are as follow:—Length,  $48\frac{1}{10}$  feet; beam,  $14\frac{1}{10}$  feet; depth,  $7\frac{1}{10}$  feet. The engine is a 23 horse power, of the type known as the "Dan," and is of Danish make. It drives the winch for hauling nets as well as the propeller and the pump. The "Ovoca" on her trials did over six knots an hour without the aid of sails. In selecting the engine and deciding on the design of the vessel, we studied the experience that had been gained in Scotland and elsewhere in motor-driven fishing boats; and, so far, the "Ovoca" has proved successful.

We also issued a loan to another crew of fishermen on the north coast to put a paraffin motor into the 25-ton boat "Monica."

The change in the class of boats taking part in the fishing, which we referred to in our last report, continues. In 1907 there was a decrease of 188 in the third and unclassified boats, but increases of 29 in the first and 95 in the second classes.

In 1907 we decided on applications for fishery loans from 151 fishermen, and arranged to lend sums amounting in all to £5,456 10s.

The question of establishing a brand for mackerel cured in Ireland for export formed the subject of an exhaustive series of inquiries, and has already been referred to in previous publications of the Department. Some of the evidence given has been regarded by supporters of the brand system in Scotland as mischievous, in so far that it was considered to have instituted an unfair comparison between Irish herrings which are cured for export, and the herrings which are eligible for the Government brand in Scotland. Whatever individual witnesses may have said at the inquiries above referred to, it is necessary to point out that a comparison of the specially fine herrings cured in the North of Ireland can only be made with the best class of herrings in Scotland, namely, those taken on the west coast of that country, which are not eligible for the brand. There is no basis of comparison between the Irish herrings cured for export and the east coast herrings of Scotland, to which the various grades of the Government brand are adapted. There is an immense export trade from Scotland in these latter herrings. The Scottish brand now, as formerly, is highly respected in Germany and Russia. Business is transacted on its guarantee, which is sufficient testimony of the great care taken to maintain its character by the Fishery Board for Scotland.

During the year the Department received an advantageous offer for the purchase of their steam cruiser Helga. After full consideration, they decided to accept it, and to replace her by a vessel of greater speed and more modern equipment for the work of fishery protection and research.

The new cruiser was built by the Dublin Dockyard Company, with engines of 1,000 horse-power, by Messrs. D. Rowan and Co., of Glasgow. Her dimensions are :—Length between perpendiculars, 155 feet; breadth moulded, 24 feet 6 inches; depth moulded, 13 feet 6 inches.

The Department arranged to retain the s.s. Helga until within a few months of the completion of the new cruiser, and in the interval between the date of delivery and that on which the new Helga was available for marine police duties a steamer was chartered for the purpose.

The difficulties of protecting our fishing grounds are steadily increasing owing to fresh demands for the prohibition of steam trawling in inshore waters all around the coast, and, although the new cruiser is much faster than the old, it seems possible that the time is not far distant when a second vessel will be necessary. Even with the additional assistance obtained by the occasional employment of the Congested Districts Board's steamer Granuaile it is hardly possible to give the simultaneous protection along the different coasts of the country which is found to be desirable.

A large number of the bays and inshore waters around Ireland are closed to steam trawling. During the year we found it necessary to propose further restrictions affecting the following places :—

An area off the coast of the County of Antrim, bounded by an imaginary straight line from Bengore Head to the most westerly point of Rathlin Island; and by said Rathlin Island; and by an imaginary straight line from the Light House on said Rathlin Island to Tor Point; and by that part of the mainland of the County of Antrim situated between Tor Point and Bengore Head.

An area around Tory Island, County Donegal, bounded landwards by the line of low water mark on the shores of said island, and bounded seawards by a line around said island drawn three geographical miles from said line of low water mark.

An area off the coast of the County of Donegal, bounded by straight lines drawn from Horn Head, in the County of Donegal, to the nearest point of Tory Island, and from the Light House on Tory Island to the Bloody Foreland.

The area off that part of the coasts of the Counties of Antrim, Londonderry, and Donegal, bounded seawards by imaginary straight lines from Bengore Head, in the County of Antrim, to the Light House on Inishtrahull, and thence to Ireland's North Point near Malin Head, in the County of Donegal, and bounded landwards by the shores of the respective counties, and an imaginary straight line across the mouth of Lough Foyle from Magilligan Point to Greencastle Pier.

The Lord Lieutenant in Council approved of all save the last, which has therefore no force.

We also found it necessary to close up part of the Public Oyster Beds at Tralee between 11th March and the 9th February in each year.

A licence to plant a mussel bed below low water mark in the River Nanny was granted during the year.

The salmon capture in 1907, as indicated by the railway traffic, showed a serious decline. The weather conditions affected the netting adversely. The outstanding feature of the fishery was the failure of the grilse, which, so far as can be ascertained, were universally scarce, late, and of poor average size.

No sign of salmon disease was observed.

A very important by-law, prohibiting the use of nets, save landing nets and those for the capture of eels, in all the fresh-water portions of the River Barrow and its tributaries, was submitted by us and received the approval of the Lord Lieutenant in Council.

We also made a by-law prohibiting the use of all engines for the capture of fish in those parts of the River Suir at Clonmel which lie between the bridges at Suir Island and the "Gas House Bridge." In this by-law we made an exception in favour of single rods and lines when used from certain banks of the river.

The output from the different hatcheries in 1907 was 5,244,500 salmon, 195,000 white trout, and 358,500 brown trout.

The Fishmongers' Company has continued to give effective aid in the suppression of illegal fishing in Ireland.

We desire to place upon record our high appreciation of the services rendered by the officers and men of the Royal Irish Constabulary in the protection of inland fisheries. Although accusations of neglect are from time to time made against the force by persons whose opportunities of knowledge of the matter must in charity be supposed to be very limited, it is only right to say that the preservation of rivers and lakes is largely due to an unceasing vigilance on the part of the Constabulary, which is much better known to would-be poachers than to the public at large.

Assistance in the collection of statistics, and in the investigation of numerous matters of detail arising out of our administration of the loan fund, was also rendered by the Constabulary, and by the Coast Guard.

Many scientific and other reports have been received during the year, and this opportunity is taken of thanking those who placed at the disposal of the Department the valuable information they contain.

THE SEA FISHERIES.

Vessels, Men, and Boys.

There were 6,097 vessels actually engaged in the sea fisheries in 1907, as compared with 6,161 in 1906, showing a decrease of 64.

This year's figures are composed of 407 first, 3,253 second, and 1,833 third class boats, 411 unclassified open row boats and canoes of 18 feet and upwards in length, and 193 unclassified open row boats and canoes of under 18 feet. The net falling off above-mentioned results from decreases of 179 in the third class, and of 9 in the unclassified open row boats, and increases of 29 in the first class, and 95 in the second class.

There were 23,045 men and 498 boys employed, being 321 men and 68 boys less than in the previous year.

The distribution of boats and persons according to the various classes of fishing followed, was as follows:—

There were 11 steam trawlers, 8 being of from 20 to 65 tons nett register, and the others being smaller vessels. Of sailing boats, 477 followed trawling, 184 of which were from 10 to 65 tons each. The remainder were smaller.

About 1,660 men and 35 boys were engaged in trawling.

Fishing by long lines was carried on by about 5,190 men and 70 boys, in 32 first class, 799 second class, 438 third class, and 111 unclassified, boats.

About 380 persons were engaged gathering oysters off the public beds.

About 3,880 persons were engaged at the lobster and crab fisheries.

About 400 persons were engaged in picking mussels, 280 in picking cockles, and 3,000 in gathering periwinkles.

Further details are given in the Appendices.

The number of boats engaged in the mackerel and herring fisheries are referred to on pages xiv. and xvii. and pages xviii. and xxiii.

There were 51 first, 483 second, 396 third class, and 41 unclassified boats, that did not fish during the year.

Four first class boats from Arklow attended the Scotch herring fishery.

Review of Statistics of Fish (excluding Salmon) Landed.

According to the returns received the total quantity of sea fish (other than shell fish) captured in 1907 was 697,901 cwts., valued at £290,892. In 1906 the corresponding figures were 753,471 cwts., and £321,475. The former therefore show decreases of 55,570 cwt., and £30,583.

The following figures show the comparison between the landings on the different coasts during the two years:—

—			Cwts.	Value.
North Coast,	1907,	.	88,028	44,089
"	1906,	.	100,230	64,959
East Coast,	1907,	.	215,334	107,408
"	1906,	.	204,735	106,738
South Coast,	1907,	.	144,195	47,710
"	1906,	.	245,262	69,231
West Coast	1907,	.	250,344	91,685
"	1906,	.	203,244	80,547

The average price per cwt. of the total catch in 1907 was about 8s. 4d., and in 1906 about 8s. 6½d.

Including shell fish the total value for 1907 was £341,049, and for 1906, £378,491.

A comparison between this year and last in respect to quantities, values, and average prices of the different kinds of sea fish landed in Ireland will be found in Appendix No. 2, page 4.

Dublin Market Returns.

The amount of fish, excluding herrings, mackerel, shellfish and salmon, which passed through the Dublin market during 1907 was 4,337 tons, being a decrease of 308 tons on that of the previous year.

The number of steam trawlers which worked regularly out of Dublin was 8 during nine months, and 7 during the rest of the year. They made 550 trips, and landed 2,558 tons of fish. As is usually the case, whiting was the fish taken in the largest quantities. It reached a total of 11,355 boxes; cod and haddock came next, the former exceeding 9,500 and the latter 6,000 boxes. Hake, pollock, ray and conger were also taken in considerable quantities. Of flat fish there were 1,334 boxes of dabs, 1,133½ of megrims or ox soles, 928 of plaice, 435½ of black soles, 281½ of turbot, and 191½ of brill.

Besides the local fleet, steam trawlers owned elsewhere sold their fish (amounting to 11 tons) in the Dublin market on four occasions.

The supplies from Howth reached 515 tons, the same figure as that of the previous year. The fish consisted of cod, haddock, whiting, conger eels, ling, ray and bream.

Three hundred and twenty-five tons, the same amount as in 1906, came from Galway. They included over 1,000 hampers of haddock, and nearly 500 of plaice. Whiting, cod, black soles, turbot, hake, and ray were also included.

The sailing vessels of Dublin Bay accounted for 197 tons, principally ray and plaice. Whiting and haddock were also landed in considerable quantities. The total take was seventy-three tons less than that of the previous year.

From the Dingle fleet of sailing trawlers 194 tons were received, which is fifteen tons more than in 1906. Plaice and black soles formed the bulk of the catch. The latter were mainly taken during February, March, April, and May.

The Balbriggan trawlers sent 142 tons, practically the same amount as in the previous year, nearly all plaice and dabs. From August to November was their best period.

Three hundred and thirty-nine tons, composed principally of haddock, plaice, cod and whiting, reached the market from various other centres. This quantity is nearly 100 tons more than that of the previous year.

Imported fresh fish outside that mentioned in the following paragraph amounted to 56 tons, as compared with 79 in 1906. It consisted almost entirely of haddock and plaice.

Besides this there passed through the market in 1907 about 6,933 barrels and 15,965 boxes of Irish fresh herrings, 12 barrels of Irish cured herrings, 5,963 barrels and 731 boxes of imported fresh herrings, and 405 barrels of imported cured herrings. The mackerel amounted to 8,661 boxes of Irish fish.

Salmon, trout, eels and shellfish were also dealt with in varying quantities.

Spring Mackerel Fishing.

The late arrival of mackerel in the Autumn of 1906 was to some extent compensated for by the continued presence of the shoals on many parts of the coast in the following January and February, long after the period of their usual stay. In January great takes were made by "nobbies" and by row boats off Valentia. The temptation to overload the row boats was very great and two boats were swamped, with the loss of eight lives, while other crews narrowly escaped. Great hopes were entertained that there might be a prosperous spring fishing, particularly as April opened with a week of summer-like weather. The balance of that month, as well as May and June, were, however, characterised by storms which made fishing on the Atlantic coast often impossible. The record for the year up to 30th of June, when, according to custom, our statistical returns for the Spring season close, is consequently bad. The catch shows a falling off of 53,655 cwts., and in value of £4,840. The decline was felt more or less at all the ports, except at Valentia Harbour, where a large number of vessels congregated, and the landings, as returned from Knightstown and Caberiveen, amounted to 21,934 cwts. against 16,005 cwts. for the preceding year, with a more than proportional increase in the money value.

It has been noted that the Spring Mackerel of the past few seasons have been of smaller size than formerly.

In treating of the general decline in the catch as recorded in the statistics above referred to, one most important fact must be mentioned. The prolongation of wintry weather into the early summer months delayed the departure of the fish, so that when the weather improved in July there was what may be looked on as a most successful extension of the spring fishery for a couple of weeks, which probably resulted in additional landings to the extent of about 40,000 cwts., the value of which would be some £8,000 to £10,000. During late years a considerable portion of the spring catch is cured for the American market, particularly during the month of June. Nearly 13,000 barrels were thus put up this season before the end of that month. The curing continued during July. A large number of firms were engaged in this trade—and two Norwegian schooners came to Cleggan, County Galway, where they bought mackerel, and in June and July gave considerable employment to the local people in curing and packing 1,374 barrels in the best style. In July many fishermen gave up mackerel fishing owing to the fact that in some places the catching of lobsters, and in others drifting for salmon, offered greater chances of profit.

The following are the numbers of Irish boats which landed Spring Mackerel in large or small quantities in 1907 :—

1st Class,	.	.	.	.	.	189
2nd „	.	.	.	.	.	428
3rd „	.	.	.	.	.	533
Unregistered,	.	.	.	.	.	31

The following are the numbers of boats belonging to other nationalities reported as engaged :—

English,	.	.	.	.	.	25
Scottish,	.	.	.	.	.	2
Manx,	.	.	.	.	.	60
French,	.	.	.	.	.	68

The catch of the French fleet is salted down on board and taken direct to France, and particulars of the capture are not included in our statistics of fish landed.

As usual, telegraphic information of the progress of the fishery was collected and despatched to all important centres twice each week during the season, and the following notes are based on the information thus obtained :—

Although at some stations a considerable quantity of fish was captured during the second week in April, it was not until the following week that operations had generally commenced. The most successful week was that ended 25th May, during which 15,164 boxes were landed by 155 boats, being an average of 20·44 boxes per boat per night.

Taking the principal stations seriatim :—

From Kinsale, during the earlier part of the season, more boats were employed than from any other station. Their number at one time reached 65. 1,670 boxes were landed during the first half of April. The next two weeks were the best of the season, 12,676 boxes having been taken. In the week ending 20th April, 4,764 boxes were landed by 42 boats for five nights' work, an average of 22·68 boxes per boat per night. During the next week 58 boats fished five nights, and landed 7,912 boxes, being an average of 27·28 boxes per boat per night. Although the number of boats increased, there was a decided falling-off in the capture in May, at the end of which month the vessels began to leave. The mackerel fetched at first 25s. per hundred, but afterwards fell to 15s. and 10s., and in the month of June 8s. was the average price.

At Baltimore fishing was in progress during the first half of April. During the remainder of that month 35 boats were working for four or five nights a week, but their catch amounted only to a total of about 4,400 boxes. During the first two weeks of May the fishing was very poor, but in the next three the landings greatly improved, and amounted respectively to 4,078,

5,995, and 4,320 boxes. About 48 boats then took part in the fishing. The best average was 44·5 boxes per boat per night for the week ended 29th June, when 30 boats fished on four nights. The week which produced the greatest actual take was that ended 25th May, when 5,995 boxes were landed by 48 boats as the result of five nights' operations. The prices commenced at 12s. 6d. per hundred. They subsequently reached 15s. for one week, but afterwards fell to about 8s.

At Castletownbere the season was a very poor one. The number of boats that fished never exceeded ten, and was generally three or four. The week ended 8th June produced the greatest result, namely 350 boxes for four nights, fishing by ten boats. The first price realized was 21s. per hundred. Afterwards 10s. per hundred was obtained, and towards the end of the season from 6s. to 9s.

At Valentia the fishing was in operation by 25 boats during the week ended 20th April. The catch (900 boxes) was not large, being only an average of nine boxes per boat per night. In the following month the number of boats increased, and from forty to fifty were engaged during the balance of the season up to the 22nd June, after which their number fell off. The best actual catch took place during the week ended 25th May, when 4,129 boxes were landed, being an average of 21·73 boxes per boat per night. During the following week 3,196 boxes were landed by fifty-one boats as the result of five nights' fishing. This, however, only produced an average of 12·53 boxes per boat per night. At the commencement of the season 25s. to 15s. per hundred was realized. During the earlier part of May prices were from 16s. to 13s., but at the close of that month some of the fish only fetched 5s. per hundred. For the balance of the season the prices varied from 14s. to 6s. per hundred.

At Fenit six boats worked four nights during the week ended 20th April, their landing (43 boxes) being insignificant. It was not until the last half of May that the boats made any remunerative captures. During the week ended 18th of that month 20 boats landed 2,453 boxes for five nights' fishing, being an average of 24·53 boxes per boat per night. In the following week 2,020 boxes were landed by 18 boats. The highest average per boat per night (61·11 boxes) was for the week ended 8th June, but only 12 boats, including steam drifters, fished on three nights of that week. The prices commenced at 20s. per hundred. In May 15s., 11s. and 8s. were paid, while in the following month 12s. and 9s. per hundred were realized.

At North Arran the season started by four boats fishing for three nights during the week ended 20th April. Their catch was insignificant. The best week was that ended 18th May, when 907 boxes were landed by 19 boats after four nights' fishing. During the following three weeks the number of boats declined to 12, and the average capture per boat per night during that time would be about 10 boxes. At the beginning the fish fetched from 15s. down to 6s. 9d. per hundred. A contract price was afterwards 7s. 6d. per hundred, which was altered towards the end of the season in July to 5s.

Particulars of the fishing will be found in Appendix No. 4, p. 12. See also chart between pp. viii. and ix.

The figures given in Appendix No. 5, pages 16-20, relate to the mackerel landed between the 1st July and the 31st December, and the amount thereof, namely, 116,434 cwts., was less by some 3,000 cwts. than that for the previous year. The money realized was also less to the extent of about £8,000. The difference in amount landed would have been still greater but for the facts that there was a large increase in the quantity of mackerel (mainly July fish) landed on the County of Galway, and that the east and south-east coasts in general showed increased captures in 1907. The real autumn season does not usually commence until about the month of September, and this year, all along those parts of the Irish coast which are mainly looked to to meet the demand of the American market, it was most disappointing. The shortage occurred, with small exceptions, at the regular curing centres around the West Cork and Kerry Coasts. It was due almost entirely to the wild and stormy weather which prevailed. In some places the boats could fish but one night a week. Around Dumanus Bay and vicinity on nine nights only during the entire season were fish caught to any extent—the Seine nets doing best. The complaint of inability to get to sea was quite general, and in the Ballinskelligs district, owing to this cause, no mackerel were landed.

The foregoing will explain in a great measure the decrease of nearly 2,000 in the number of barrels of mackerel cured for export. When it became evident that the autumn season would result in a shortage of fish, the prices in America which, about the middle of the year were quoted at from thirteen to fourteen dollars a barrel, rose gradually, and eventually reached nineteen and twenty dollars a barrel. At the same time it is probable that the standard of cure during the season was higher than formerly, owing to the fact that a great deal of information as to the pronounced effect in America of good or indifferent or bad curing, as the case might be, was disseminated in the curing districts at public inquiries which were held by the Department in January and February of 1907 into the question of the advisability of instituting a Government brand for Irish-cured fish.

The mackerel landed in July—a very substantial quantity—was somewhat low-priced, and that caught off the east coast in herring nets was of small value and only sold locally. These facts helped to lower the average price for the six months; but in many parts of the curing districts from 10s. to 13s. per hundred fish was paid to the fishermen during November and December.

A trial for autumn mackerel was made, with the assistance of the Department, by a crew of fishermen from Ring, Co. Waterford, but did not produce any satisfactory result. The fish caught eastwards from Kinsale are usually of too small a class for the curers.

For full details of the autumn mackerel fishery the tables in the Appendix No. 5, pp. 16-20 must be examined, and in the chart between pages viii. and ix. the relative importance of this year's catch can be noted.

The following are the numbers of Irish boats which landed Autumn Mackerel in large or small quantities in 1907:—

Irish, 1st Class,	. . . . .	113
" 2nd "	. . . . .	904
" 3rd "	. . . . .	705
" unregistered,	. . . . .	44
" unclassified,	. . . . .	242

Three English boats came for this fishing.

Summer Herring Fishery.

The summer herring fishing shared with the spring mackerel fishing the decline on the season's returns. This decline seems to have no other general cause than the tempestuous weather which prevailed in the early months. The falling-off was from 113,495 cwts. in 1906 to 96,274 cwts. in 1907, with a decrease on the season of £14,378.

The decline was much marked at Dunmore East, Ardglass, and Kinsale. At the latter practically none but Scottish boats fish for the summer herring. At Ardglass the falling-off was partly accounted for by the weather and partly by the fact that a number of Portavogie boats worked from their home port. Portavogie, consequently, showed a great increase on the previous year's landings. The strike of the dockers at Belfast caused many boats to give up fishing on the Co. Down coast before the close of the season, owing to the impossibility of getting their catches shipped in the cross-Channel steamers from Belfast.

From Kinsale and the east coast most of the fish caught were marketed fresh, as were also those caught by local fishermen in mackerel nets off the west coast. In Downing's Bay (Co. Donegal) curing went on as usual, and 10,897 barrels of herrings were despatched thence to markets in Russia and Germany, &c., where they fetched the highest prices paid there.

We found it necessary to publish a warning to curers in connection with the irregularity of the practice of branding the words "Downing's Bay" on barrels containing herrings which were not landed or cured at Downing's Bay.

The herrings which are caught in considerable quantities in the mackerel nets off the Kerry coast are of specially good quality, and the Congested Districts Board sent an expert herring curer to that coast in the summer to instruct the mackerel curers in the best method of curing those herrings.

The following are the numbers of Irish boats which landed Summer Herrings in large or small quantities in 1907:—

The system of telegraphic intelligence was continued during the year in connection with this fishery, and revealed the following points of interest :—

At Howth a small quantity of fish was taken at the end of May and the beginning of June, but it was not until the month of July that considerable captures were made. From seventeen to twenty-five boats were fishing that month, save in the third week of it, when forty-two boats worked on a couple of nights. The prices were high in the month of May, when the captures were small. In the last week of June the fish fetched £1 0s. 9d. a mease, but afterwards the prices varied between 11s. and 18s. The total quantity of fish taken was 2,736 mease, and its value would be about £2,365.

The weather in June and July was mostly favourable. The quality of the herring when the fishing was at its height was good.

At Dunmore East there was a marked falling-off in the take, only 784 mease having been landed. In the week ended 4th May eighteen boats fished for one night, but during the balance of the season the number varied from six to eleven. The weather generally was rather unfavourable. The highest price (21s. a mease) was realized during the second week of June. The season closed about the third week of that month.

With regard to the experiment which was undertaken last year with the assistance of the Department to test the presence of herrings in this neighbourhood during February and March, it is interesting to note that a Scottish steam drifter fished three nights in the opening of February, but made no capture. On the 21st of that month another Scottish boat fished and caught about a mease. During the week ended the 23rd February one boat fished for a night and caught  $1\frac{1}{2}$  mease. Three steam and two sail drifters then arrived, and for one night's fishing only had a result of  $\frac{1}{2}$  mease, the quality of the fish being poor. The steam drifters then left. During the week ended the 16th March two boats fished one night, but without success. The weather was favourable during the test, and the general results are similar to those of the previous year.

At Kinsale the fishing was light, the most successful week being that ended 25th May, when 160 mease were landed by thirteen boats as the result of five nights' fishing. The season began by the arrival of eight Scottish boats on 9th May, and closed early in June, but towards the latter half of that month some 110 mease were caught in mackerel nets. The prices throughout were from 12s. to 25s. a mease. The weather was, generally speaking, not suitable for a successful fishing.

At Killybegs 876 crans were landed, showing a satisfactory increase on last year's catch. Most of it was cured for exportation. The season opened about the middle of April, and during that month the best takes were made. The fishing started by nine boats, but after the second week of May some of these left for other centres, and only two boats pursued operations in the months of June and July. As much as 85s. a cran was obtained for a small quantity in the third week of June. The prices, however, were very variable. During the period of the greatest captures the fish fetched only from 17s. to 18s. a cran, but 30s. and 40s. were subsequently obtained. Towards the end of May and at the beginning of June the average was only about 12s. 6d., while subsequently 85s., 70s., 45s., and 43s. were paid.

At Kincasslagh the entire fishing took place during the latter part of May. Over 200 crans were landed, most of which was cured for exportation. The prices were 53s. and 42s. 6d. a cran.

At Burtonport 20 crans were landed in the month of May the prices varying from 80s. to 30s. a cran.

At Downing's Bay the bulk of the fish was landed during the two weeks ended 18th May. About 90 boats fished for five nights each week, their combined takes amounting to about 7,200 crans. The prices varied from 31s. to 47s. a cran. Subsequently as many as 140 boats, including steam drifters, took part in the fishing, but their total catch for two weeks ended 1st June was only about 1,600 crans. Prices varied from 84s. to 45s. 6d. a cran. The quality of the fish was good, and the weather was favourable. The season closed after the first week of June.

At Buncrana the fishing took place during the last three weeks of May. During the first week 30 boats fished for five nights, landing 51½ crans. In the following week 1,631 crans were landed by 70 boats as the result of five nights' fishing. The total catch for the season was over 2,600 crans. The price kept somewhere about 44s., but on one occasion went down to 10s., and on another up to 54s. a cran. The weather was favourable.

From Portavogie a few boats fished in April. The number gradually increased to 29 in the following month. During the remainder of the season a further increase took place until in the week ended 13th July 45 boats were operating. The total amount landed was 5,234 mease. Prices were very variable. They were as low as 5s. 6d. and as high as 25s. In the first part of May and the first part of June the weather was unfavourable, but otherwise it was fair enough. The fish reached its highest quality during the latter half of June.

At Ardglass fish were first taken in the last week of April, when three boats worked for three nights. The number of boats increased in the following month, during one week of which 18 vessels fished for four nights. On occasions afterwards as many as 24 boats worked. The best week of the season was that ended 29th June, when 952 mease were landed. The prices were variable, being mostly between 10s. and 15s. a mease. The catch amounted to 7,608 mease. The herrings did not reach their best quality until the middle of June.

At Kilkeel herrings were first taken about the 16th of April. Three boats continued fishing until the middle of the following month, when the number increased to eight, and during the week ended 15th June as many as 15 boats were working. The total quantity landed was about 2,691 mease, and the prices all through varied from about 10s. to 15s. At one time, however, 30s. a mease was obtained.

Particulars of the fishing will be found in Appendix No. 6, p. 22.

Autumn and Winter Herring Fishery.

The total catch of herrings during the autumn and winter season of 1907-8, amounted to 222,870 cwts., valued at £65,113, as compared with 211,164 cwts., valued at £76,864 in the previous corresponding season. The decrease in the money is accounted for by the fact that there was a serious falling off in the quantity landed on the north-west coast of Donegal between Burtonport and Downing's Bay, in which district the herrings are of very good quality, and the prices are always much higher than on other parts of the Irish coast. It was also due in part to the fact that the east coast captures were 25 per cent. more than in the autumn season of 1906-7, while the amount realized for them remained practically the same. Increased landings occurred at Ardglass, Kilkeel, Skerries, Howth, Arklow and Courtown.

The Waterford stations show that the landings declined from over 20,000 cwts., to about 2,000 cwts.

The fishings off the Cork coast on the contrary gave substantial increases. Queenstown, Kinsale and Bantry had totals very much in excess of those of the previous season, whilst Baltimore and Schull are credited with 2,500 cwts., none having been landed there in the season of 1906-7. A large falling off is, however, noticeable at Castletownbere and Ballycrovane.

At the latter station herrings showed in great numbers for a short time, two row-boats landing fifteen thousand in two nights, but as most of the vessels were then engaged in mackerel fishing the herrings were not followed when they shifted ground.

The fishings off the Kerry coast and in Galway Bay resulted in large decreases.

In Donegal Bay there was a remarkable increase. In Donegal Harbour alone 42,721 cwts. of herrings were landed, as compared with 1,271 cwts. for the season 1906-7.

Herrings set into Killary Harbour in considerable numbers in November and December, and a good fishing was availed of by boats from the surrounding districts.

Fourteen thousand seven hundred and twenty-four barrels were cured for exportation. This was very considerably less than the quantity so treated during the previous season, which result is due to the want of success in the fishing off the north-west coast of Donegal.

The weather was exceedingly stormy in the autumn, and at the time when the best fishing might have been expected, very few nights proved suitable, and on the Donegal coast a number of fine luggers were driven from their anchorages and totally lost.

The system of telegraphic intelligence revealed the following points of interest :—

At Houth the quantity landed was 5,082 mease, being 1,491 mease more than in the previous season. A very large proportion of the fish was captured during August and September. Over thirty boats were engaged early in August, and about fifteen at the end of September. Prices varied from 20s. to 6s. per mease.

At Arklow operations began late in October and lasted until the end of December; 3,186 mease were taken, which was 2,004 mease more than the amount landed during the previous autumn season. Prices ranged from 20s. to 7s. per mease. On one occasion 48 boats were working. Forty boats fished for seven nights, while from 20 to 33 took part during most of the season.

At Dunmore East, where 3,838 mease were captured in the season of 1906-7, only six mease were landed this season.

At Helwick Head 788 mease were caught, as compared with 5,780 in 1906-7. The number of boats engaged here was about twelve. Over half the catch sold at 10s. 6d. a mease. The quality of the herrings was good.

At Summer Cove 1,159 mease caught in mackerel nets were landed. Last season there was none. Prices about 15s. a mease.

At Killybegs 1,682 crans were landed, as compared with 1,466 crans in 1906-7. During August a few boats worked. In September the number increased to 29. Afterwards about 10 boats fished, but towards the end of October 20 boats were out for four nights. For the few caught in August the prices were high, between 45s. and 58s. In September they were over 40s., when the quality was good. The fish afterwards became mixed, and prices ruled from about 20s. to 16s. Prices varied from 14s. 6d. to 45s. per cran.

At Burtonport and the neighbouring creeks 1,559 crans were landed. Almost all the fish was taken during the last week of November, when 120 boats were engaged. The quality was very good, and the average price was 36s. per cran. The amount landed did not greatly exceed one-fourth that of the previous season.

At Kincaslugh the bulk of the capture took place in November and January. The amount landed was 826 crans compared with 1,989 crans in 1906-7. Prices were from 26s. to 31s. per cran. From forty to fifty boats were engaged when the fishing was at its height. The weather was unfavourable a large part of the time.

At Downing's Bay the season opened in September, but only relatively small captures were made until the month of January. The amount landed was 5,500 crans, which was almost 1,200 crans less than in the previous autumn season. The quality was very good. The prices in the early part were high, from 40s. to 50s. a cran. From 17s. to 44s. were afterwards realized. Over sixty boats were at one time engaged, but many of them, giving up all hopes of earning anything, left before the herrings appeared in paying quantities. In January the number of boats varied between 4 and 32. The weather, on the whole, was unfavourable.

At Buncrana 695 crans were landed by five boats fishing on five nights during the week ended January 25th. They were sold at £1 0s. 10d. a cran.

At Portavogie 2,149 mease were landed up to the 21st September. The quality generally was mixed, and prices ranged from 18s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. per mease. The previous season's catch was 2,658 mease. In the earlier part the number of boats which fished weekly was between 24 and 37. The numbers afterwards fell to 16, 14, and as low as 4.

At Ardglass the fishing produced 6,332 mease, nearly all during August and September. Only 3,575 mease were landed during the previous autumn. From 16 to 28 boats were engaged during the first half of the season, but afterwards the numbers dropped to 8 and 3. The prices generally ranged at from 12s. to 15s., but they went as low as 5s. 7d. a mease. The weather was changeable. The quality of the fish good in August and early September.

At Kilkeel, where the boats worked during August, September, and October, nearly 4,800 mease were landed. The quality was mixed at the beginning and end of the season, but good in the middle of it. Prices ranged from 20s. 9d. per mease downwards, the lowest being 7s. 5d. The landings at Kilkeel showed an increase on that of the previous autumn season.

The following are the numbers of Irish boats which landed Autumn and Winter Herring in large or small quantities during this season :—

Mussels.

The quantity of mussels exported in 1907 was about 1,956 tons, and the annual export since 1901 has averaged about 1,930 tons, the highest and lowest figures being respectively 3,636 tons in 1905, and 803 tons in 1904. The principal sources of supply are Castlemaine Harbour in Kerry, Dundalk and district, Belfast Lough, Sligo, and South Donegal. While the Belfast mussels go chiefly to Scotland, the manufacturing towns in the northern and midland counties of England take most of the rest, and appear to offer a demand for large well-fished mussels which is greater than the supplies which have hitherto been brought under contribution. There are on various parts of the Irish coast prolific beds of good mussels which, probably on account of the cost of marketing, have never been seriously exploited for the English markets.

During the past winter the Department caused samples of mussels to be sent to various English markets from Oranmore and Clarenbridge in Galway Bay, and from the Kenmare River and Glengariffe Harbour. The Galway consignments gave rise to an immediate large demand, especially from Manchester, and the railway companies concerned made no difficulty in reducing the existing rates to a figure which made it possible for the local people to carry on a vigorous trade until the close of the season, which, although not defined by any general legal definition, may be said to extend from October to about the middle of March. The Glengariffe operations were conducted on a more modest scale, but gave promise of remunerative work in so far as the productiveness of the beds, which are of limited extent, may allow.

The Kenmare experiment was less successful, because it was found that mussels, though abundant and of good quality, could not be raised cheaply enough to afford a fair margin of profit. It is hoped to overcome this difficulty by the introduction of bag-rakes, as used in the estuaries of the Exe and Tees, but these could not be obtained before the close of the season. It is our pleasant duty to acknowledge the courtesy with which our inquiries as to quality of mussels required, method of packing, &c., &c., were met by the dealers to whom consignments were made.

In addition to testing the market, the Department have undertaken, in Galway Bay and Glengariffe Harbour, demonstration of the method of mussel culture by relaying operations, such as have met with so much success in the Liverpool district and elsewhere.

It is matter for regret that the condition of the Castlemaine Harbour fishery cannot be said to be satisfactory. Observance of the by-laws dealing with this region has been rigidly enforced by the Department's bailiff, but it appears that the beds which produce the best quality of mussels have been rather seriously depleted, while the market reputation has been subjected to considerable risk by the consignment of inferior products. So far it has not proved possible to induce the local dredgers to co-operate in the replenishment of the deep-water beds by relaying thereon young stock derived from the tidal area, although, for purposes of demonstration, the Department have offered to pay all the expenses of such operations.

Loans.

There were received during the year 129 applications from 151 persons, for loans amounting to £5,860 0s. 10d. Of these there were granted 122 loans to 143 persons, to the amount of £5,456 10s. The sum actually issued during the year was £4,464 14s. 10d.

Many of the loans were for sums varying from £5 to £10, but larger sums were also issued, and in regard to these the following will indicate the amounts and purposes:—

In County Dublin sums of £230, £150, £140, £110 and £42 were advanced for the purchase of boats and gear, £230, £110, and £70 for the purchase of boats, £60 for the repairing of a boat, £61 10s. for the repairing of a boat and purchase of a yawl, &c., and £200 for the purchase of ropes, sails, &c. An advance of £14 10s. for the purchase of an otter trawl was also made.

In County Wicklow a sum of £1,150 was advanced for the building and equipping of the motor fishing boat "Ovooca." Two sums of £100 each and one of £60 were issued for the purchase of nets, &c. Three loans of £35 each were made for the building of boats, and one of £90 for the purchase of a boat and gear.

In County Wexford £25 was issued for the repairing of boats.

In County Waterford a sum of £25 was issued for the repairing of a boat and the purchase of gear. Advances of £21 and £12 were made for the purchasing of boats, and £24 for the purchase of herring nets, &c.

In County Cork a loan of £15 was granted for the purchase of herring nets.

In County Galway, sums of £80, £50, £36, £35, £28, £26, £24, £23 10s., £22, and £21 10s., four of £20, three of £25, two of £21, three of £16, one of £15, and one of £12, were issued for the purpose of providing boats or boats and gear.

In County Sligo £23 was advanced for the building of a boat.

In County Londonderry, a sum of £72 was issued for the purpose of purchasing a boat and sails, and £55 for the purchasing of herring nets, &c.

In County Antrim £180 was granted for the installation of a motor engine in a fishing boat; other loans varying from £50 to £64 were made for the purchase of nets and sails, and one of £25 for the purchase of a boat.

In County Down sums of £200 and £120 were issued for the purchase of boats; sums of £120, £80, and £25 for the purchase of boats and gear, and £14 for the purchase of herring nets.

The administration of this fund was imposed on the Department on 1st April, 1900. Since then 945 applications were received from non-congested districts for sums amounting on the whole to £25,503 11s. 10d. Only seventy-seven of them fell through, arising from various causes such as insufficient security, the fact that the applications were from persons under age, or were for purposes outside the scope of the Act, or were dropped or withdrawn, or were actually refused as being from persons who were not bona fide fishermen, or with regard to whom unfavourable reports had been received, or who had bad records.

Since the passing of the Purchase of Land and Congested Districts (Ireland) Act, 1891, under which a sum of £20,000 was reserved for administration in non-congested districts (which fund has been placed at the disposal of the Department by the Act 62 & 63 Vic. cap. 50), the sum of £43,567 7s. 7d. was advanced by way of loan up to the 31st December, 1907. The promissory notes signed to secure principal and interest amounted to £46,799 5s. 5d. The repayments were £38,193 1s. 10d., the outstanding notes not arrived at maturity £7,808 9s. 3d. The arrears on the £43,567 7s. 7d. amounted to £423 10s. 6d. In addition £374 3s. 10d. is irrecoverable. It will be thus seen that the bad debts do not amount to 1 per cent.

On 31st December, 1907, the Fund stood thus:—

Government Stock, . . . . .	20,000	0	0
Cash, . . . . .	3,316	13	0
Outstanding Promissory Notes not arrived at maturity, . . . . .	7,808	9	3
Arrears, . . . . .	423	10	6

Further particulars in connection with these loan transactions will be found in Appendix No. 17., pp. 52-55.

Casualties.

The number of fishermen who lost their lives in the year ended 30th September, 1907, while actually in pursuit of their calling, was twenty-two. In the previous yearly period the number was eight. Four were drowned while engaged in work not immediately connected with fishing. One first, eight second, three third-class, and one unclassified boats were lost during the year under review, while engaged in fishing, as compared with two first, four second, and four third-class boats in the previous year. Five first-class and one second-class boats were seriously damaged.

The following are the particulars of the casualties as furnished by the Coast Guard Officers at the various stations :—

From Howth Station.—On the 29th November, 1906, the master of the "Ellen Jane" of Howth, while engaged in long-line fishing off the Kish Lightship, was knocked overboard and drowned.

On the 23rd May, the first-class boat the "St. Catherine," of Howth was dismasted in a gale while fishing off the Kish Lightship.

One of the crew of the "Clementina," of Howth, while engaged in fishing about one mile south-east of Ireland's Eye, on the 19th June, fell overboard and was drowned; and on the 28th September, another man belonging to the same boat, which was then lying in Howth Harbour, was also drowned. It is supposed that he fell into the harbour when returning on board at night.

From Ringsend Station.—The second-class boat "Sea Swallow," was sunk by collision in the River Liffey on the 5th November, 1906. No life was lost.

From Union Hall Station.—The master of the fishing boat "Emma," was drowned on the night of the 19th September. He was returning to his home from Union Hall in the small boat belonging to his vessel.

From Baltimore Station.—On the 20th August, two fishing boats collided off Cape Clear. The second-class boat "Island Maid" sank, but her crew were saved by the other vessel.

From Ballycrovane Station.—On the 8th December, 1906, the second-class boat "Glimpsa," was blown from her moorings at Dinish Island and was broken on the rocks.

From Knightstown Station.—Two second-class boats with eight men were lost on the 14th January. The boats are reported to have been overladen with mackerel.

From Caherciveen Station.—On the 18th June one of the crew of a second-class boat, while engaged in shortening sail, fell overboard and was drowned.

From Ballinagall Station.—On the 24th November, 1906, the canoe "Star of the West" sank with her nets and take of fish. On the 2nd May, 1907, the canoe "Stay," of Smerwick, was, during a heavy gale, blown off the beach at that place, and became a total wreck.

From Brandon Quay Station.—Whilst two men were proceeding to the Maghera Islands, on the 22nd May, to capture lobsters their canoe capsized and they were drowned.

From Seafield Station.—On the 17th October, 1906, a canoe belonging to Quilty, and manned by a crew of three men, was capsized by a heavy surf about four hundred yards off Seafield Pier. Two of the crew were rescued, but the third was drowned.

From Costello Bay Station.—When returning from a regatta held at Mynish Bay on the evening of the 16th July a boat containing a party of thirty-five persons was, when going about, capsized. Twenty-seven of her passengers were rescued, the others, five young women and three fishermen, were drowned.

From Keel Station.—One unclassified boat was wrecked at Achill Head on the 20th October, 1906.

From Raghley Station.—On the 2nd May, the second-class fishing boat "Maria" was blown from her moorings and foundered.

From Killybegs Station.—A fisherman fell from a boat lying alongside the pier at Killybegs on the 6th October, 1906, and was drowned.

From Bunbeg Station.—The first-class fishing boat "Alexander" while anchored off the south side of Innismeen Island, dragged her anchors in a gale on 2nd May, and became a total wreck. No one was on board at the time.

From Burtonport Station.—On the 6th December, 1906, seven first-class boats were stranded at Gortnasatc. Four were greatly damaged.

From Sheephaven Station.—On the 19th November, 1906, the second-class lugger "St. Ambrose" became a total wreck at Portnablagh owing to the parting of her mooring chains in a strong gale.

From Portrush Station.—A second-class fishing boat sank in Portstewart Harbour during a gale in October, 1906. She was damaged beyond repair.

From Ballygalley Station.—On the night of the 16th February, a third-class fishing boat, with a crew of three men, was returning from Carnlough to Larne. She was capsized by a heavy squall, and was subsequently found broken up on the Scotch coast. The bodies of her crew were not recovered.

From Burr Point Station.—On the 8th May, a second-class boat containing a crew of three men was capsized in a squall. The crew were drowned.

Piers and Harbours.

The operations of the Department during 1907, in connection with the construction and improvement of piers and harbours were as follows:—

Arklow.—This harbour, which formerly was frequently during every year blocked by sand and which, when the Department took charge of it, had been inaccessible for lengthened periods for anything larger than small boats, has been kept open by the Department's dredger, under an arrangement with the Harbour Board, and the depth on both the inner and outer bars has been steadily improved. There are now some nine feet at low water of spring tides across the former and up to the berths in the river, while the latter may be said no longer to exist, the depth there (some 13 feet) being that of the surrounding area.

As a result, there has been an increase of traffic generally and considerably so in connection with Messrs. Kynoch's factory. There is a tendency shown for the harbour to become a place of general resort, and, to some extent, of refuge. It has been crowded with shipping almost continuously.

The Department expended a sum of £30 on the improvement of a slip, which was mainly used for the launching of vessels turned out from Messrs. Tyrrell's boatyard at Arklow. The improvement was found to be specially necessary in connection with the launching of a large motor fishing boat which was being built there to the order of the Department.

The scheme for the construction of a floating basin and the further improvement of the channel by means of dredging is in process of execution by the Department with funds allocated from the Irish Development Grant.

Poulduff.—The extension of this pier has been completed and the works have been taken over by the county. It has been reported that the pier is giving much satisfaction locally.

Passage East.—The Department paid their promised contribution of £2,000 towards the expenses of this undertaking, which was carried out by the Board of Works. The Department also contributed £200 to meet an excess of expenditure on this pier.

Tramore.—The Department have completed the reconstruction of this pier and, the conditions having proved favourable, were able to improve considerably on the original scheme. Much local satisfaction is expressed with the work.

Helvick Head.—The question of the repair and improvement of the boat dock at Helvick Head for the benefit of the local fishermen has been and is still under the consideration of the Department, who may possibly render financial aid in carrying out any scheme approved of.

Newtown Creek.—The Department offered to pay half the cost of constructing a landing place at Newtown Creek provided the Waterford County Council voted the other half. The work has been carried out by the Department.

Garrarus Strand.—The Department provided a winch for the use of the fishermen at this place.

Baltimore.—Negotiations are proceeding with the local authorities at Baltimore in connection with a proposal to erect, jointly with the Congested Districts Board, a slip at this place.

Glandore.—The Department paid their contribution of £5 for this year towards the cost of maintaining a harbour light.

Adrigole.—The work at this pier, to which the Department contributed £1,000, has been finished under the management of the Congested Districts Board, and it is understood that a satisfactory traffic is being developed.

Ringmoylan.—The Department gave a contribution of £800 towards the completion of the pier, mainly on the ground of its facilities for transit of goods. The pier is only very slightly used for fishing, and, therefore, the contribution did not come from that part of the Department's Endowment Fund which is specially applicable to the purposes of sea fisheries. The work is being carried out by the County Council.

Hoobawns.—The Department informed the Clare County Council that they were prepared to carry out a small work at Hoobawns at a cost of about £350 if the Council provided £50. The necessary funds being promised, the work has been undertaken and is now well in hands.

Kilcummin.—The Department had an inspection made of the boat-slip at Kilcummin, and consider that an expenditure of about £100 would enable the necessary repair and improvement to be effected. They informed the Mayo County Council that if a local contribution equal to one-third that amount were forthcoming the Department would provide the balance and carry out the work.

† Inniscrone.—The provision of storage accommodation during winter for the boats of the Inniscrone fishermen is desirable, and the Department informed the Sligo County Council that they were prepared to co-operate in enabling the Council to secure a plot of ground which appeared suitable for the purpose.

Rathmullan Pier.—Traffic at Rathmullan was seriously impeded owing to the silting which had taken place at the Pier. The Department made a contribution of £200 to the County Council to enable the necessary dredging to be carried out. The work was effective.

Portrush.—The Department's dredger was hired by the Portrush Harbour Company and succeeded in clearing and improving the berthage to the extent required, although the material to be dealt with was by no means suitable for operation by suction dredging.

Port Ballintoy.—The scheme for the improvement of this Harbour has not yet been put into operation owing to some difficulties connected with private ownership. Arrangements are, however, being made which it is hoped will overcome these difficulties and provide for the repair and future maintenance of the Harbour.

Lough Neagh.—The Department offered to contribute—within a limit of £100—one half the cost of carrying out a scheme for the improvement of the landing accommodation at Cranfield.

Wrackport, Co. Down.—The Department expended over £30 in erecting a winch for the use of the fishermen at this place.

The Department repaired the barking pan which they had established some years ago at Giles' Quay for the benefit of the fishermen.

Correspondence has taken place and inspections have been made by the Department's officers in connection with requirements at other places, where schemes did not assume definite form during the year.

In the Report of the Inspectors of Irish Fisheries for the year 1894 a return was given relating to works under the Sea Fisheries (Ireland) Act, 1883 (46 and 47 Vic., c. 26), up to the 31st March, 1895.

Since that time particulars of the yearly expenditure under the Act by the Commissioners of Public Works have been given in the Annual Reports of the Fishery Authorities.

The expenditure by the said Commissioners during the year ended 31st March, 1908, was as follows:—

Pier Works:	£	s.	d.
Passage East Harbour, . . . . .	2,146	17	0
*Portavogie, . . . . .	10	0	0

Marine Superintendence.

Since the cases mentioned in our last Report the Department's steam cruiser Helga made three captures of vessels which were considered to be working in areas closed to steam trawling. Two fines of £50 and one of £100 were imposed, and the nets used were ordered to be forfeited.

The Department also instituted proceedings against the skipper of a vessel for illegally steam trawling off the Londonderry coast. The circumstances were brought under the notice of this Branch by the local fishermen. The magistrates imposed a fine of £85.

In two other cases of alleged illegal steam trawling reported by fishermen, the Department will prosecute.

A summons was issued against the master of a steam trawler which was observed inside the limits by H.M.S. Skippack, but the case was dismissed. The Commander of the Department's steam cruiser detected a small local steam trawler fishing illegally in Dundrum Bay. Proceedings were instituted, and a fine of £10 was imposed, and the net of the vessel ordered to be forfeited. Two local sailing trawlers were also captured fishing illegally in this Bay, and a fine of £10 was imposed in each case. Three instances of illegal fishing by sailing trawlers in the same locality were reported by the fishermen. Prosecutions were instituted by the Department. In one case a fine of £10 was inflicted. The two others were dismissed. A further case is pending.

INSTRUCTORS AND BAILIFFS.

A bailiff was again employed by the Department for the oyster fishery in Tralee Bay. Under his supervision the bed has improved and the regulations have been more consistently observed by the fishermen.

He devoted part of his time to the Castlemaine Mussel Fisheries, where he had the assistance of a local watcher, who was also appointed by the Department.

He was also employed, during the early part of December, in supervising the dredging of the public oyster beds at Clarenbridge, with the assistance of a boat's crew engaged by the Department, and of the bailiffs appointed by the local fishing community. The open season is the month of December, but actual dredging was, as usual, restricted by local agreement to the first half of the month. Restocking by the Department is taking place here.

The Department have been taking steps to increase the stock of oysters on the Westport beds, and employed a bailiff to protect the young oysters and to supervise generally the fishing operations.

The Department continued their assistance to the Kinsale Technical Committee in connection with the net-mending class. They paid the salaries of an instructor and other officials, as well as the rent, lighting, and care of the class-room, and for fixtures and materials. The following is an extract from a report of the experiment received from the Secretary to the Kinsale Technical Instruction Committee :—

"A four months' course of instruction was conducted in Kinsale during the past winter, commencing on the 4th November last, in response to an application of the Kinsale Technical Committee to the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland.

"The subject was, as one would expect, taken up with great earnestness, and the classes, which were in charge of a local man, were not long formed when it was found impossible to provide instruction for all the applicants, and in making a selection amongst them preference was given to the sons and daughters of the fishermen, as the instruction was mainly intended for them. By this means a very good class of student was got together, who attended the instruction night after night, and showed a genuine desire to obtain a practical knowledge of the subject.

"The class was composed of about twenty boys and ten girls."

The Department afforded skilled instruction to the crews of fishing boats who desired to follow the herring fishery, and also to a fisherman in the curing and mounting of nets. In two cases, as similar instruction had previously been given free by the Department, the crews contributed part of the instructors' salaries.

INLAND FISHERIES.

Salmon Fisheries.

Having regard to the quantity (1,183 tons) of salmon and trout carried over the Irish railways in 1907, the year cannot be looked upon as a satisfactory one. This traffic showed a decline on all those railways save one. For the previous five years the amounts so carried were, respectively, 1,778, 1,881, 1,880, 1,881, and 1,649 tons. The shortage in 1907 appears to be largely due to the failure of grilse, which, so far as can be ascertained, were universally scarce, late, and of poor average size.

Out of 22,922 boxes of salmon received in Billingsgate market, London, 5,543 were from Ireland. In the previous year out of a total of 24,994 boxes 7,100 were from Ireland. In 1905 the figures were 25,607 and 5,979.

No sign of disease was observed in any of the districts, and, speaking generally, offences against the fishery laws have diminished.

Save as specially mentioned hereafter, no case of river poisoning was reported.

Elections of Conservators for the Drogheda, Dundalk, and Waterville Districts took place this year.

Drift netting for salmon continued on a large scale in the sea off the coast from Connemara to Londonderry. It does not appear to have been so productive as in 1906, the total estimated capture for the three months of June, July and August in each year having been, respectively, 3,313 cwts. and 2,367 cwts. As this fishery depends for its success almost entirely upon the capture of large grilse, the condition of the grilse supply before referred to would seem to furnish a sufficient explanation of the difference.

It is reported from the Dublin district that the year showed a slight improvement on the previous one. The Autumn run of fish, when the nets were off, was the best for five or six years. The weather was unfavourable to netting, but favourable to rod fishing, on account of the rainy season and consequent floods.

The Department made a grant of £13 17s. to the funds of the Dublin Board of Conservators, being the equivalent of the amount locally subscribed.

The Wexford district also reports a slight improvement. The take by nets was greater, the weather being favourable. Angling was fair, especially from May on. From October to January there was a good run of salmon.

In the Waterford district, the general state of the salmon fisheries was reported to be satisfactory, and the take by nets was up to that of the preceding year. Angling was good in the early part of the season. February and March were fairly fine and open for netting and angling. April was a wet month, and the water, as a rule, was too high for rod fishing. The early part of May was hard and dry, and unfavourable to nets and rods, and the latter part of the month was broken. The south and south-west winds caused a good run of salmon—when the nets did well. June was wet and stormy and unfavourable to angling. July was a good month, but August again was wet and stormy. Very few grilse were taken during the year. Some heavy Spring fish were caught, but the average weight of the salmon would be from 12 lbs. to 15 lbs., and grilse about 4½ lbs.

The Sheeptown river, which is a tributary to the Nore, was poisoned with lime. The offenders were convicted.

At Cahir Park rod fishery on the River Suir 48 salmon weighing altogether 525½ lbs. were taken. The figures for 1906, were 47 salmon, weighing 555 lbs., and for 1905, 49 salmon, weighing 666½ lbs.

Ten salmon, weighing 103½ lbs. were taken at Neddin's Water. In the previous year, the capture was 18 salmon, weight 400 lbs., and in 1905, 24 salmon, weight 384 lbs.

In the Lismore district, the salmon fisheries were reported to be improving, although no increase in capture took place in 1907. The weather was favourable to netting, as it was to angling during February, March, and April, from Lismore to Carysville. It was fair for the whole river during the remainder of the season. The year was a bad one for grilse, but there was a good run of both salmon and grilse during the whole months of October and November. Very many of the grilse were of small size.

In previous reports (Part II.) we gave comparisons between the annual captures at the Blackwater Fishery, Lismore, and an average for the twenty-five years ended 1899. This year it was 48 per cent. below such average. At the Dromana Fishery there were only 369 fish caught. In 1906 there were 833, and in the previous year 711.

In the Cork district the general state of the fisheries was described as fairly good. A fair number of salmon were captured by nets in February and March, but netting for sea-trout was unsatisfactory. Angling was pretty good in March and April. The water was, however, low.

During the years 1905 and 1906 the Department contributed £500 to the funds of the Conservators of the Cork district. In view of the large public rights of fishing exercised therein, and of the efforts made by the fishermen and proprietors to provide locally the funds necessary for the purposes of protection, the Department made a further grant of £250 to the Board this year.

The fisheries of the Bandon section of this district slightly improved, but the take of grilse was less than last year. Spawning commenced unusually early in the rivers. The angling season was fair, and, in the upper reaches, a little better than the average. Floods enabled the fish to go up, in consequence of which rod fishing in the lower portions of the rivers was rather poor. The weather was unfavourable to netting. A tributary to the Bandon was poisoned by spurge in July. There was very little poaching in the division.

Although the Department contributed sums of £30 and £16 in previous years to the funds of the Bandon division, the financial position of the Conservators remained still unsatisfactory, and did not enable them to keep sufficient watch over the large extent of spawning rivers and tideway under their control. The Department therefore offered to contribute (within a limit of £30) the sum of £2 for every £1 subscribed locally. This offer was availed of to the full extent.

In the Skibbereen district the fisheries were described as improving, but the capture of salmon and grilse by nets was somewhat less than last year. There was an average take of sea-trout. About the first week of September a great quantity of salmon and trout came up the river. Some of the larger salmon remained below the weir until October. The weather was favourable. A few salmon were found dead, but the cause of mortality is unknown. In two cases dynamite was used for the purpose of taking fish.

The fisheries of the Bantry district were reported to be declining, the capture being less than in the previous year. Angling was, however, fair. Two cases of river poisoning occurred.

The Department offered to contribute a sum of £30 towards the funds of the district, on condition that £1 should be subscribed locally for every £2 provided by the Department. The offer was availed of to the extent of £8.

In the Kenmare district the season was described as bad, and less productive than that of 1906. Angling, too, was poor. The weather was unfavourable both to netting and angling. Spurge was used in two rivers of the district.

In previous reports (Part II.) we gave comparisons between the annual captures at the Blackwater Fishery, County Kerry, and an average for the twenty-five years ended 1899. This year it was 72·2 per cent. below such average.

The Department made a grant of £60 towards the funds of the Conservators of the district, being at the rate of £3 for every £1 raised by local subscription.

In the Waterville district the take of salmon and grilse by nets was reported to be greater than, and that of sea-trout about the same as, last year. Salmon angling was good, and sea-trout angling slightly better than in 1906. The weather was favourable to fishing. The spring fish this year were very heavy.

In previous reports (Part II.) we gave comparisons between the annual capture at the Waterville Fishery, and an average for the twenty-five years ended 1899. This year it was 45·7 per cent. below such average. The actual number of fish taken was 341. The figures for the previous year and 1905 were respectively 439 and 287.

In Killarney district, although the weather was described as favourable, the catch was poor. Angling during the spring on the Killarney lakes was fair, but in the summer months was indifferent.

The following observations were made by a gentleman who has a large interest in the fisheries of the District:—

“1st August, 1907.

“The season which closed last night was a remarkable one in this District, inasmuch as a heavy run of salmon began in November and continued until May, decreasing gradually towards that month. The grilse which nominally would have come in the greatest numbers in June were practically absent from these waters, and I think it holds the record for scarcity and the small size of the fish.

“For the past week, when in other years the season would have been quite spun out, they have been coming in increasing numbers.

“Substantially there was a ‘gap’ of six months in the season whatever may have been the cause.”

The Brown Fleak was poisoned by means of lime in the month of July.

At the Laune Fishery, below Killorglin, the take this year was 59 per cent. below the average for the twenty-four years ended 1898.

The Department offered to contribute (within a limit of £100), a sum of £2 for every £1 voluntarily subscribed towards the protection of the fisheries of the Killarney District.

The salmon fisheries of the Limerick District in the year 1907, were described as declining. The take by nets was not more than half the average. The angling season was one of the worst for many years. The weather was most unfavourable to netting, but during part of the year was favourable to angling. There were four cases of poisoning in the District.

The following reports from the different parts of the District were received in August, 1907 :—

" Kilrush.—The season here for weirs and nets was bad. The fish did not put in an appearance this year same as former years.

" Tarbert.—The season here for weirs and nets was bad. The weirs did fairly well for a short time during the spring fishing.

" Glin.—A very marked decrease this year.

" Loughill.—The weir here did fairly well this year and better than last.

" Foynes.—A considerable falling off in the take of fish this year.

" Ennis.—A very small take of fish compared with the last five years.

" Castleconnell.—A considerable falling off in the supply of fish here.

" Killaloe.—Nothing noticeable.

" Adare.—Salmon and peale fishing here very bad, the poorest for many years.

" Listowel.—A vast increase of salmon and white trout in this part of the district as compared with former years.

" Athlone.—The number of spring fish caught here was far above the average of previous years. There was never such a lot of salmon taken at Boyle as this year. There was a decided improvement also in the Rivers Inny and Suck. It may be taken that this district has a very great increase all round.

"It is probable that the cause of the increase may be attributed to the fish passing up earlier in the year before the weirs were opened for fishing; and for the last five or six years there was noticed a considerable run in December and January; also the protection in the upper waters has very much improved since the launch in Lough Ree was got."

At the Newgarden, Summerhill and Castle, Woodlands, Doonass and Hermitage rod fisheries, about Castleconnell, the total number of fish taken was 186. In the previous year it was 328; in 1905 it was 292.

The Department contributed towards the funds of the Limerick Board a sum of £960 in view of the fact that a sum of £240 had been raised by local subscription.

A grant of £20 was made by the Department to the Trout Protection Association which looks after the fisheries of Lough Sheelin.

The Department reconsidered the question of the financial assistance which was promised towards the funds of the Local Committee having charge of the fisheries of the Rivers Feale and Cashen. About two-thirds only of the Department's offer of £120 had been availed of, and it was arranged that the unpaid balance should not be issued, but that a new grant of £150 would be made on the following conditions:—

- (a.) That the Limerick Board of Conservators would give to this portion of their District the normal amount of protection which they would have given had no assistance been rendered by the Department.
- (b.) That besides this, the Limerick Board of Conservators would allocate a sum of £30 to the funds of the Committee.
- (c.) That the Department's grant would be issued in the proportion of £3 to every £1 raised locally.
- (d.) That one-half of the sum mentioned in condition (b) might be considered as a local subscription for the purposes of the grant.
- (e.) That the scheme of expenditure by the Committee should meet with the approval of the Department.

In the year 1906 the Department afforded financial and engineering assistance in the erection of a fish pass in the Listowel Weir, which has proved a great success, as may be gathered from a letter, of which the following is a copy:—

“23rd August, 1907.

“The pass is a great success. During the early part of the season, when water was very low, great numbers of fish were seen making for it with unerring instinct. We have had excellent fishing and plenty of it.”

The following appeared in the local press on 21st June, 1907:—

“ANGLING IN THE FEALE.

“The predictions made for years respecting the increased revenue the Fishery Board would derive from the improvement of the Feale, have this year been realised, as never since the erection of the mill weir at Listowel have so many licensed anglers availed of the excellent fishing afforded by the River Feale, particularly in its upper waters, as, during the present season, a fact, of course, attributable to the kindness of Mr. Latchford in permitting a fish gap to be inserted in the weir at Listowel, and the advantages of which I had been anticipating in these columns for years. Large numbers of tourists have this year found first-class sport in the Feale."

The Department offered to the Westmeath Lakes Fish Preservation Society a contribution, within a limit of £20, of 7s. 6d. for every £1 subscribed locally. The offer was availed of to the extent of £15. The Society has been doing good work.

In view of the large number of persons who come to Lough Derg annually for the fishing, and of the resulting employment of boatmen and others around the lake, and also having regard to the fact that local subscriptions to the amount of about £85 were collected, the Department contributed a sum of £42 to the funds of the Lough Derg Fishery Society to enable that body to afford increased protection to the fisheries.

This was one of the worst years on record for the Galway Fishery, and indeed, generally over the whole of the Galway district the take was much below the average. The capture by rod and line at Galway was only about one-third that of last year. It was fairly good, however, over other parts. The weather was unfavourable in the spring, but generally favourable to both angling and netting during the summer months.

A grant of £25 was made by the Department to the Lough Corrib Fisheries Association to enable it to carry on its work. Through the efforts of this body a great improvement has been effected in the fisheries, and increasing numbers of anglers have been attracted to the locality.

The Lough Mask and Carra Fishery Association applied for a renewal of the grant of £15 which, in a previous year, the Department made towards the expenses of protection. The work of the Association is of public utility, and about £100 was subscribed during the season 1906-7. The Department consequently renewed their grant of £15.

In Connemara District the fisheries were said to be fair, but declining. Angling is the only class of salmon fishing followed. It appears to have improved in the Gowla, Inver, Ballynahinch and Lower Costello Rivers, and was fair in the remainder of the District. The weather was favourable all round.

The netting season in the Ballinakill District was, owing to floods, more or less a failure, but angling was very good.

The Bangor Fisheries during 1907 were reported to be unsatisfactory and declining. The take by nets was less productive, and angling was not so good. The weather conditions all through the season were, in most parts of the District, unfavourable. Fish appeared in the rivers three weeks later than usual.

The general state of the Salmon Fisheries in the Ballina District was described as fair, and not, as a rule, declining; but for the Moy the year was the worst on record. Angling was fairly good. The weather was most unfavourable, floods and cold occurring throughout the season. Poaching is said to be widespread in this District during the close time.

The capture at the Moy Fishery was sixty per cent. below the average for the twenty-five years ended 1899.

It appeared to the Department that the local Board of Conservators were not in a position, from want of funds, to afford the necessary protection to the spawning fish in their district, in which a very considerable public fishing is carried on. An application was made to the Department for a grant of £350. and, on consideration, it was decided that a contribution of £250 for one year might be offered, provided that the Conservators obtained another £100 from local sources, that additional bailiffs were employed to watch the spawning streams, and that the Moy Fishery Company contributed at least £700 to the funds of the Conservators. This offer was availed of.

The Sligo District Fisheries were fairly good, and described as improving. The take by nets was much the same as, or perhaps a little better than, during the previous year. Angling was good at times. The weather was described as, on the whole, favourable. Some fish were killed by the use of dynamite.

The reports from the Ballyshannon district were rather unfavourable, save as to angling, which was good, the weather having been suitable to this mode of fishing. Floods were responsible for the diminished capture of salmon and grilse by nets. Pollution by flax-water and lime occurred.

The Department made a grant of £44 to the Ballyshannon Board of Conservators towards the cost of protecting the fisheries of the Bundrowes River.

In the Letterkenny district the fisheries were described as fair and improving, the take of salmon and grilse by nets being more productive. Angling improved much as compared with former years. The weather was suitable to it but unfavourable to netting. It is said that the average weights of the salmon and grilse have increased in the district. A few cases of flax-water poisoning occurred.

The Londonderry fisheries were not so good as in 1906. The take by nets was less productive, as the weather was rather unfavourable to that mode of fishing. Angling, however, was fair. In one case dynamite was used to take fish. One or two reports of the use of lime were received, and flax-water pollution occurred in many places.

The Salmon fisheries of the Coleraine district in the year 1907 were described as declining. Netting for salmon and grilse was less productive than in the previous year, although that for sea-trout was much the same. The weather during the whole season was most unfavourable to netting, as it was to angling during the earlier part, but July, August, and September suited the rod men. Prosecutions took place in about sixty cases of flax-water pollution. Three instances of poisoning by lime were reported.

A sum of £100 was contributed by the Department this year towards the protection of the fisheries of Lough Neagh, on which Lough a very large number of the public are engaged in fishing for salmon, trout, eels and pollen. A condition attached to the grant was that the amount allocated for the like purpose from the ordinary funds of the Board of Conservators should not be decreased.

The sum of £100 which was promised in a previous year with the like object was paid during the early part of this year.

The Department contributed a sum of £20 towards the purchase of good, healthy trout fry for distribution in the rivers of the Coleraine district, on condition that a like amount was contributed locally, and that the selection of the places for the liberation of the fry would be made with a view to the benefit of those parts of the waters of the district in which private rights of trout fishing were not enforced. This enabled the Conservators to place over 100,000 fry in the lower reaches of the Rivers Maine, Moyola, Ballinderry and Blackwater, and in Lough Neagh. Similar operations in former years, aided by contributions from the Department, are reported to have resulted in the appearance in Lough Neagh of a considerable number of trout which are regarded by the fishermen as derived from imported ova of the Loch Leven variety.

The net fisheries of the Ballycastle district greatly declined in 1907, which year was, owing to unfavourable weather, the worst of many past. Rod-fishing did not, however, show any decline. Some cases of flax-water pollution occurred.

The state of the fisheries in the Dundalk district was, on the whole, satisfactory, although a decline took place as compared with the previous year. Netting for salmon and grilse was less, while for sea-trout it was slightly more, productive than in 1906. Angling was good during the first three months of the open time, but was bad afterwards. The weather was said to be favourable to netting. Twelve cases of flax-water pollution occurred.

The fisheries of the Drogheda District were reported to be declining. The take by nets was less. Angling was fair. The weather conditions were said to be favourable. The fish appeared in the river somewhat later than in 1906.

The Department continued their policy of assisting in the artificial propagation of salmon and trout. During the season 1907-8 the output from the different hatcheries was 5,244,500, as against 6,143,000 in the previous season.

In addition the output of white trout was 195,000, and of brown trout 358,500.

Full details of hatchery operations are contained in Parts II. of the annual reports of this Branch.

Further applications for change of close seasons were received during the year under review, which, however, are held over pending legislation which will enable the Department to deal with them in a satisfactory manner.

Inspections of mill premises, with a view to the protection of fish and the provision of facilities for their migrations, were made. Exemption from compliance with the obligation to erect gratings was granted in some cases.

The total number of rod licences issued in 1907 was 3,147, compared with 3,124 in 1906. In regard to engines used mainly by fishermen who fish on common law rights, the number of draft net licences issued was 665, a decrease of 73 on the previous year; and of drift nets, 642, a decrease of 16.

The total amount received by Boards of Conservators for licences in 1907 was £10,667 15s. 0d. The total ten per cent. rate collected on the poor-law valuations of fisheries was £917 5s. 6d. Fines and the sale of forfeited engines, &c., produced £521 15s. 5d., and subscriptions came to £3,013 12s. 0d. The grand total was £15,120 7s. 11d.; in 1906 it was £14,116 19s. 2d.

See Appendices Nos. 25 to 29, pp. 127 to 151.

Eel Fisheries.

The returns furnished by certain railway companies of the amount of eels carried over their systems would indicate that this traffic was about one-fifth less than that of the previous year. The number of licences issued for coghills was 82, for gaps, &c., 343, and for draft nets 19. In the previous year there were 56 coghill, and 368 gap, &c., and 21 draft net licences issued.

In the Drogheda district the eel fisheries appear to be improving. The principal runs took place in October and November.

In the Dundalk district the runs are said to have taken place during August, September, and October, and the general condition of affairs is described as satisfactory.

About twenty men and boys were engaged in the Wexford district in taking some £60 worth of eels.

In the Waterford district the principal run took place in October and November.

There are 16 eel weirs on the Barrow, 2 on the Suir and 2 on the Nore. The eel fisheries of the district may be taken as having improved this season.

It has been stated that no eel fry have come up the rivers of the Bandon division for the past five or six years, although no obstruction to their doing so exists.

The reports from the Limerick district are fairly good, the principal runs taking place in October, November, and December. Probably from £6,000 to £8,000 worth were captured.

The eel fisheries of Galway in 1907, were below the average, the principal runs taking place in October, November, and December. About 12 men followed net fishing for eels. A few men used long lines.

About £40 worth of eels were taken in the Connemara district.

In the Ballina district the eel fisheries remain much the same as they have been for a number of years. Possibly about £500 worth were taken.

It is understood that the eel fisheries of the Ballyshannon district were not so good this year.

From Coleraine it is reported that the eel fisheries were better than last season, and that they are improving, the principal runs taking place in September, October, and November. Coghill nets in weirs and draft nets and long lines are used. It is probable that about 400 persons are engaged; and the value of the fish despatched from the district has been roughly estimated at £11,000.

Pollen Fisheries.

The Pollen Fisheries of Lough Neagh for the year 1907 were thought to be less productive than in the previous year—although the amount sent to cross-channel markets was practically the same in both years. During the summer months very few fish were taken, but they were very large in size. The heaviest takes were at the commencement of the season. About three-fourths of the catch went to the English markets and the remainder was for home consumption. There were 145 licences issued for Pollen draft nets, and 88 for Pollen trammel nets, producing a total licence duty of £305 10s. The number of persons employed in fishing would be about 700, but in addition there are persons engaged in repairing boats, nets, &c, so that there would be from 900 to 1,000 persons dependent on the fishery.

The average price would be over 20s. per cwt. Good prices were obtained at the latter end of the season for large fish which were taken in the trammel nets.

We have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servants,

WM. SPOTSWOOD GREEN,

APPENDIX No. 2.

Comparison between the years 1907 and 1906 in respect to quantities, values, and average prices of the different kinds of sea fish landed in Ireland.

Brill.—The total capture of brill in 1907 was 667 cwts., valued at £1,320, as compared with 644 cwts., valued at £1,281, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was about £1 10s. 10½d., and in 1906 about £1 19s. 9½d.

Soles.—The total capture of soles in 1907 was 3,011 cwts., valued at £12,077, as compared with 2,497 cwts., valued at £9,212, in 1906.

The average price in 1907 was £4 0s. 2½d. per cwt., and in 1906 £3 13s. 9½d. per cwt.

Turbot.—The total capture of turbot in 1907 was 841 cwts., valued at £3,228, as compared with 690 cwts., valued at £3,214, in 1906.

The average price in 1907 was £3 16s. 9½d. per cwt., and in 1906 £4 13s. 2d. per cwt.

Cod.—The total capture of cod in 1907 was 14,779 cwts., valued at £11,006, as compared with 16,847 cwts., valued at £12,058, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 14s. 10½d., and in 1906 14s. 3½d.

Conger eel.—The total capture of conger eel in 1907 was 6,087 cwts., valued at £3,713, as compared with 4,388 cwts., valued at £3,166, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was about 12s. 2½d., and in 1906 about 14s. 5d.

Haddock.—The total capture of haddock in 1907 was 16,103 cwts., valued at £12,371 as compared with 11,603 cwts., valued at £8,808 in 1906.

The average price in 1907 was 15s. 4½d. per cwt., and in 1906 15s. 3½d.

Hake.—The total capture of hake in 1907 was 5,260 cwts., valued at £6,836, as compared with 6,264 cwts., valued at £9,318, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was about 16s., and in 1906 about £1 9s. 7d.

Herrings.—The total capture of herrings in 1907 was 309,310 cwts., valued at £102,701.

In the previous year the total capture was 310,427 cwts., and the total value £125,557.

The average price in 1907 was 6s. 7½d. per cwt., and in 1906 8s. 1½d. per cwt.

Ling.—The total capture of ling in 1907 was 8,587 cwts., valued at £5,910, as compared with 9,186 cwts., valued at £7,525 in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 13s. 9½d., and in 1906 16s. 4½d.

Mackerel.—The total capture of mackerel in 1907 was 252,473 cwts., valued at £78,097.

In the previous year the total capture was 308,873 cwts., valued at £91,080.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 6s. 2½d., and in 1906 5s. 10½d.

Plaice.—The total capture of plaice in 1907 was 22,926 cwts., valued at £24,783, as compared with 16,951 cwts., valued at £16,722 in 1906.

The average price per cwt. was £1 1s. 7½d. in 1907, and 19s. 8½d. in 1906.

Ray or Skate.—The total capture of ray or skate in 1907 was 7,265 cwts., valued at £2,795, as compared with 6,392 cwts., valued at £2,891, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 7s. 8½d., and in 1906 9s. 2½d.

Sprats.—The total capture of sprats in 1907 was 2,499 cwts., valued at £498.

In the previous year the total capture was 2,229 cwts., valued at £405.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 4s., and in 1906 3s. 7½d.

Whiting.—The total capture of whiting in 1907 was 15,096 cwts., valued at £10,187, as compared with 12,907 cwts., valued at £9,102, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 13s. 6½d., and in 1906 14s. 1½d.

Other kinds (not including shell fish).—The total capture in 1907 was 33,067 cwts., valued at £15,361, as compared with 43,703 cwts., valued at £21,206, in 1906.

The average price per cwt. in 1907 was 9s. 8½d., and in 1906 9s. 3½d.

Shell Fish.

Oysters.—The returns received show that about 5,314 hundreds of oysters were taken off the public beds in 1907, and that the value thereof was £1,255. The figures for the previous year were 10,652 hundreds, and £2,792.

From the private beds, so far as returns are obtainable, about 11,268 hundreds of oysters were lifted. The value of these is estimated at £3,470. The figures for the previous year were 21,388 hundreds, and £5,135.

See also Appendices No. 13, p. 45, and No. 19, p. 60.

Lobsters.—The returns received show that about 80,038 dozens of lobsters were captured in 1907, and that their value was £32,420. The figures for the previous year were 67,146 dozens, and £28,089.

See also Appendix No. 10, p. 40.

Crabs.—The returns received show that about 34,583 dozens of crabs were taken in 1907, and that their value was about £2,241. The figures for the previous year were 39,642 dozens, and £3,066.

See also Appendix No. 11, p. 42.

Mussels.—The returns received show that the weight of the mussels taken this year was 2,118 tons, and that the value thereof was about £2,637. The previous year's figures were 1,972 tons, and £2,747.

See also Appendix No. 14, p. 48.

Cockles.—The returns received show that about 44,425 gallons of cockles were picked in 1907, and that their value was about £1,319. The figures for the previous year were 39,537 gallons, and £1,083.

See also Appendix No. 15, p. 49.

Periwinkles.—The returns received show that the weight of periwinkles taken this year was about 1,831½ tons, and that the value thereof was £6,410. The figures for the previous year were 2,105½ tons, and £7,368.

See also Appendix No. 16, p. 50.

Shrimps.—Shrimping is not largely followed around the Irish coast. The cases mentioned in Appendix No. 12, page 44, are the only ones in which reports came to hand that shrimps had been taken. It is estimated that the value was £375. The figure for the previous year was about £514.

The total value of the shell fish, as furnished in the returns for 1907, is estimated at £50,157, as against £52,016 for 1906.
